

BILDERBERG 2015

63ème conférence

Bilderberg

Littéralement « montagne d'image », le Groupe Bilderberg tient son nom de l'hôtel ayant accueilli la première édition en 1954. Depuis trois ans, je documente les périphéries de ce congrès hermétique.

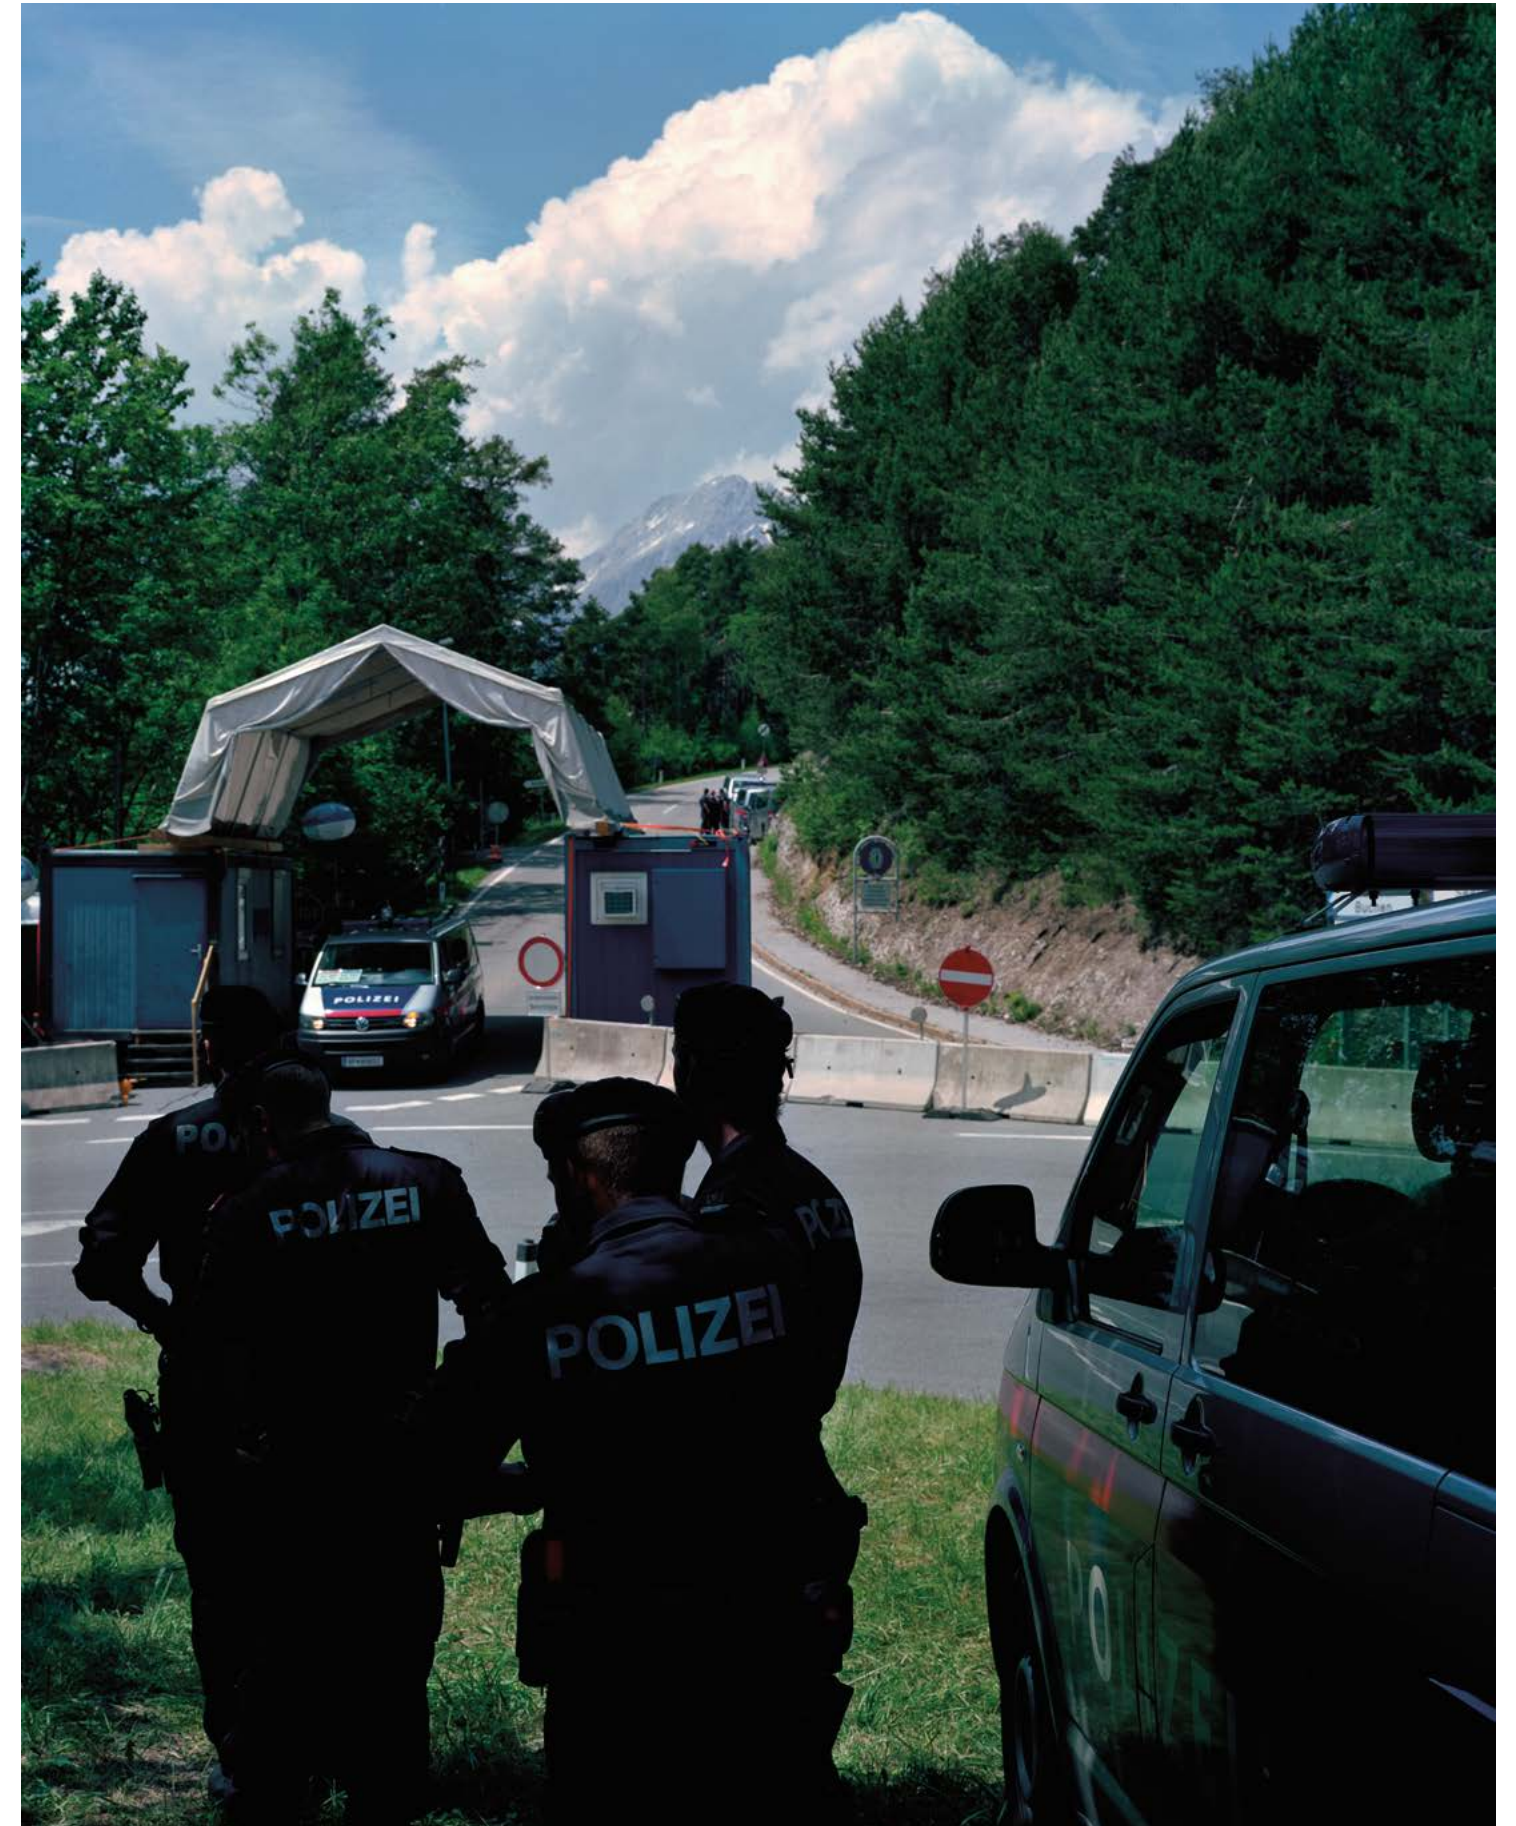

Réunion annuelle sur invitation, le Bilderberg héberge officiellement 130 participants provenant principalement du monde occidental.

Chaque année, un hôtel au décor impénétrable est réservé pour permettre ce rassemblement d'acteurs majeurs du monde politique, monarchique, diplomatique, économique et médiatique.

Une zone interdite est définie. Un déploiement massif de forces de sécurité est mis en place à l'intérieur de la propriété privée, débordant également sur les lieux publics.

Des milliers de policiers, des militaires et d'avions de surveillance oeuvrent à l'opacité de ces rencontres.
Aucune conférence de presse à l'agenda ni aucun bilan rendu public.

Mon intérêt se focalise sur la limite territoriale établie pendant la conférence.
Une frontière tantôt floue, tantôt rigoureuse, évoluant jour après jour.

Muni d'une chambre photographique, cantonné sur le sol public, j'ai malgré tout subi onze contrôles de police et trois menaces d'arrestation.

La prochaine réunion se tiendra quelque part à Dresde, en Allemagne, du 9 au 12 juin 2016.
